Wheat Berries

Bran. This is the fibrous outer layer of the kernel. Fractions produced by milling are rich in fibre, minerals, vitamin B6 and some phytochemicals, in particular antioxidants, just to name a few.

Germ. This reproductive part of the kernel is rich in a variety of nutrients, such as healthy fats, vitamin E, B vitamins, and antioxidants.

Endosperm. The largest component of the grain kernel consists of protein and starchy carbs. In most cases, white flours are mostly composed of the endosperm.
